Lebanon and National Identification in the Digital Era: from National to Multinational States

PROFILE

Amr El-Kebbi was born in 1977, Beirut Lebanon, and immigrated to Canada in 2008. He holds a BS in Chemistry from AUB, an MBA from LAU, and a PhD in Business Administration from McMaster University. Currently, Amr is an Assistant Professor of Entrepreneurship and Strategy. His research focuses on identities and identification at the individual, organizational, and field levels. He publishes in peer reviewed journals and at the yearly held Academy of Management conference. He teaches entrepreneurship and strategy courses at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. He taught at McMaster University, Toronto Metropolitan University as well as SAIT in Calgary, Canada. He will be joining S. Olayan School of Business at the American University of Beirut this Fall 2023. Before his academic career, Amr had more than 20 years of corporate experience where he founded and managed firms in the Middle East, North Africa, and North America. Amr has a passion for culture, history, and international relations. He describes himself as a global citizen with multiple cultural identities. He advocates for embracing diversity as an essential requirement to boost innovation and entrepreneurship in the current digital era. Amr will be discussing National Identities as well as identities and identification of Lebanon and its people in the age of digital era.

OUR NEW LEBANON

"We strive to preserve Lebanon as a model of freedom and democracy. We work to promote peace, neutrality, freedom of religion, and free speech. We support economic liberty and political independence. To strengthen and expand the US-Lebanon relationship in ways that enhances the security of both countries. To educate and guide decision-makers on the bonds that unite the two countries and matters of interest to the Lebanese American Community.
